Capital Area Regional Fugitive Task Force In May of 1998, Andre Lane and an accomplice, going by the name “Buggalo,” were contracted to kill a male individual in retaliation for a murder. On May 31, 1998, Lane and “Buggalo” lured the victim out of his residence in Northeast Washington, D.C. and chased him down the street. Lane shot the victim multiple times in the body and when the victim fell to the ground, Lane stood over him and shot him several more times in the head. The victim was transported to D.C. General Hospital where he was pronounced dead. During the course of the investigation, a witness was also killed. As a result, all other witnesses would not testify for fear of retaliation. Detectives continued to work diligently for the next seven years, and in July 2005, identified Andre Lane as the killer. On July 20, 2005, a warrant was issued out of D.C. ## Pacific Southwest Regional Fugitive Task Force

Andre Dion Brown was arrested on July 26, 2005 in Los Angeles, California by members of the Pacific Southwest Regional Fugitive Task Force (PSWRFTF) and parole agents from the California Department of Corrections (CDC). Brown, a member of the “Rollin 60s” street gang, was wanted by the Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD) 77th Division for murder and attempted murder and by the CDC for parole violation. The charges against Brown allege that, on January 6, 2005 he and other “Rollin 60s” gang members were “hunting” for members of the “Hoover Crips” gang to kill in connection with a gang initiation. During the process, the Rollin 60s “hunters” observed two young black men wearing orange shirts, apparel which is associated with the “Hoover Crips.” The “Rollin 60s” gang members opened fire, killing one of the men and seriously wounding the other. The case resulted in significant media and community attention due to the fact that neither victim was a gang member. One victim was a recent medical school graduate and the other a friend who was visiting him. The shooters were subsequently apprehended and Brown was identified as the “shot caller” who had ordered the gang inductees to shoot the victims. In February 2005, the LAPD and CDC requested assistance from the PSWRFTF in locating and apprehending Brown. For several months, PSWRFTF, LAPD, and CDC investigators conducted investigations and surveillances in an effort to apprehend Brown. On the afternoon of July 26, 2005, a surveillance team of CDC and PWSWRFTF investigators observed an individual believed to be Brown enter a liquor store at the corner of Century Boulevard and South Main Street. After confirming that the subject was Brown, investigators moved in and arrested him without incident and turned him over to LAPD Detectives at the 77th Division for processing and booking.
